DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claims 1-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hanson (US 6,215,859 B1) in view of Steinberg (US 6,618,763 B1).

Hanson discloses a method of transmitting a message, comprising:

inputting identification numbers of receivers (Figure 2, step 32);

determining a message transmission type (urgent delivery can be chosen; Figure 2, steps 34 and 35);

transmitting (urgent message delivery is attempted; Figure 2, steps 37, 38, 40-44); and if the transmission succeeds, confirming whether any further receivers of the message exist (Figure 2, step 38) and, if no further receivers exist, returning to an idle mode (Figure 2, step 39).

Hanson differs from the claims in that it does not specify the message as being a text message. However, Steinberg teaches that it is well known in the messaging art to allow for urgent text message delivery as well as voice (Figure 3B; col. 1, line 56 – col. 2, line 7; col. 2, line 48 – col. 3, line 24) such that it would have been obvious to an artisan of ordinary skill to provide for text message delivery, as taught by Steinberg, within the message delivery method of Hanson to allow the user the option of sending a text message as an alternative to voice.

Art Unit: 2643

Regarding claims 7, 14, 19, Hanson provides for identifying a plurality of recipients as an aliased group (col. 4, lines 33-35).

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-23 have been considered but are moot in view of the new grounds of rejection.
